Local Advisory Boards In WPA, Roosevelt Aim

Studies Plan For County Investigation Into Complaints; Proposal Comes as Committee Indicates WPA to Be Found Guilty of Participation In 3 Senate Races.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Controversy over the WPA broke over a wide front today with these outstanding developments:

1. Revelations by a White House adviser that President Roosevelt is considering creation of non-partisan WPA advisory boards in every county of the nation to consider all complaints and make recommendations for handling of relief by the federal agency.

2. Disclosure by a usually well-informed senator that the Sheppard senate committee, which policed the November elections, will issue a unanimous report finding WPA personnel guilty of participation in the senatorial races in Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Tennessee.

3. Conferences by anti-New Deal Republicans and Democrats in congress to lay plans for a fight to turn over administration of federal relief to state boards acting under rules laid down by congress.

4. Demands in congressional circles that WPA officials explain why the congressional appropriation of $1,325,000,000 to carry on WPA from last July 1 until next March 1, is going to be exhausted in mid-February.

These developments were expected to have an important bearing upon whether the senate will confirm erstwhile WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins as secretary of commerce. Administration senators continued to insist he will be able to ride the storm brewing on Capitol Hill over WPA.

Plan Seen Concession.

Should the chief executive turn to the county WPA advisory board program, it was believed in congressional circles this would be a concession to those who have been contending the WPA system needs overhauling. Doubt was voiced by some senators that such a move by the executive would head off the storm apparently gaining force in congress.

The senate campaigns investigating committee headed by Senator Sheppard (D., Texas) continued in session behind closed doors today, whipping into final form the report it will submit to the senate.

No direct attacks will be made upon any of the senatorial candidates in the November elections by the committee, but it was stated by a usually well-informed senator its report will "discuss the system that has prevailed among some of the WPA officials and employes."

Stands by Findings.

The committee, it was said, will stand by its findings announced during the campaigns, that in Kentucky several WPA chieftains took a hand in the race in support of the re-election of Democratic Senate Leader Alben W. Barkley.

The committee will lay before the senate all of the reports of its investigators substantiating affidavits of citizens of Pennsylvania on and off relief rolls, that state WPA personnel played a part in the unsuccessful campaign to elect Democratic candidates for the senate and governorship.

Mercury Dips to 4 Above, More Cold Due

LIGHT SNOW TO FOLLOW RISING TEMPERATURE

Much Colder Forecast for Thursday Night; Zero Wave Grips Most of U. S.

TAKES 15 LIVES IN NATION

Water Supply at Toledo and Sandusky Threatened by Strong Wind.

More snow and cold were in sight for Mansfield today after the worst cold wave of the season dropped the mercury to four degrees above zero in the city this morning and claimed at least 15 lives in the nation.

A slight rise in temperature is due to bring light snow tonight, with much colder weather slated for Thursday night, the weatherman said.

Unofficial readings in Mansfield this morning ranged down to zero, while the official four above reading was reported by Observer Otto Sprunger.

Springfield Coldest Spot.

Springfield, with an unofficial two above zero, was the coldest spot in Ohio, although all sections of the state had temperatures near zero. It was eight above at Columbus and Dayton, and 10 above at Cleveland and Cincinnati.

The cold was more bearable today after a strong wind, which bore the frigid blast into the state yesterday, died down during the night. It was 18 above zero at noon today. The average for the past 24 hours was 9.5 degrees, far below the normal 26.3. The high yesterday was 15c.

Toledo and Sandusky were threatened with a complete shut-off of their water supply yesterday when a 30-mile wind blew so much water out of the Maumee river and Sandusky bay that the cities' water intakes were left above the water level.

Water Level Drops.

The water level in the Maumee river dropped six feet, and the Toledo pumpers took in only 600,000 gallons an hour against the normal 2,000,000 gallons.

The cold wave, less severe in some sections than was predicted, nevertheless spread suffering across the nation from the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic ocean.

At Buffalo, N. Y., the wind velocity reached 61 miles an hour for a time and ropes were placed along streets to help pedestrians keep their feet. Storm warnings

'Glamor Gal' Makes Her Debut

BRENDA DIANA DUFF FRAZIER

Society Meets Brenda— This Time It's Official

Familiar Figure In Night Clubs, In Newspapers and Magazines Makes Debut—It Costs $75,000.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Brenda Diana Duff Frazier, the richest, prettiest and most publicized debutante of the year, "came out" to society in the grand ballroom suite of the Ritz-Carlton hotel early today at a party which cost $75,000 and didn't start until after midnight.

A thousand guests paraded some $3,000,000 worth of orchids, ermine and diamonds up the festooned stairs, at the top of which was a champagne bar, one of four bars.

The No. 1 glamor girl of 1938 stood in the receiving line beside her mother, Mrs. Frederic Watriss.

In a gown of white duchess satin trimmed in ostrich feathers, Miss Frazier—who is worth $4,000,000—greeted the guests to whom her face and lithe figure had been a familiar sight in night clubs and on newspaper and magazine pages for months.

Guests had the run of the ballroom, the oval room, palm court and the large foyer. They danced to two orchestras, Emil Coleman's in the main ballroom; Alexander Haas' red-coated Hungarians in the oval room.

The supper menu included such simple items as bean soup and breast of chicken. Breakfast was served at 4 a. m.

QUIET DEBUT

Mrs. Roosevelt's Niece Makes Her Bow at White House.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, daughter of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's brother, Hall Roosevelt, of Dedham, Mass., was presented to society last night—the first debut in the White House in 28 years.

The last debutante presented there was Helen Taft, daughter of the late President and Mrs. William Howard Taft. Her party, an afternoon tea, was held in 1910.

Miss Roosevelt's debut was made at a ball in the White House East room. The reception was preceded by a small dinner in the state dining room attended by intimate friends and members of the Roosevelt family.

U. S. PAY HIGHER

Manufacturers Say 'Real Wages' Greater Than in Dictatorship.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The National Association of Manufacturers said today that a study under its auspices had proved that the "real wages" of American workers were much higher than those in totalitarian countries.

"A factory worker in the United States can buy four times as much food and clothing with an hour's wages as a German worker, nine times as much as an Italian worker, and nearly 12 times as much as a Russain worker," a report declared.

O. P. S. FIGHTS RATE ORDINANCE

Utility Charges Sandusky Power Price Schedule Confiscatory.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The Ohio Public Service company appealed to the state utilities commission today from a five-year power rate ordinance approved on Dec. 19 by the Sandusky city commission.

The utility contended rates fixed by the ordinance are confiscatory and provided insufficient compensation. Pending hearing of the appeal the company will continue to charge its present rates under bond of $60,000.

Appeal of the Marion Water company from a rate-regulating ordinance passed by the city of Marion was dismissed.

MOCK RESIGNS, SEWER SURVEY FACES DELAY

Special City Engineer Was Slated to Head Detailed Check of City System.

TAKES JOB IN CLEVELAND

State Demands Sewer Survey Before It Will Okay Any Improvements Here.

Alvin M. Mock, special city engineer, submitted his resignation to city council last night, and the proposed city sewer survey suffered another blow.

Mock, who was first employed as a designing engineer and later was put in charge of the Woodland water improvement program, said he would join the firm of George B. Gascoigne and Associates, Cleveland, as an assistant engineer.

Made Field Survey.

Mock has already made a field survey of the city sewer system, and was expected to take charge of the detailed survey—if council found the money for it. The state board of health had demanded a complete survey and plan of improvement before it would approve any work on the system.

City Engineer W. C. Statler has had two assistants working on the sewer survey for the past several months, but they have been able to devote only a part of their time to that work.

Adds to Sewer Woes.

Mock's resignation is the newest difficulty to enter the sewer survey picture, but it is not the only one. Council recently decided it had no money for such a survey. And in addition, the state department of health has repeatedly warned the city that no improvements will be approved in the sanitary sewer system until definite action has been taken towards making the survey which they requested last spring.

It has twice turned down plans for the improvements in the past six months because the city has

300 FILE FOR UCC BENEFITS

Registrations Speed Up at Mansfield Office; Two Others Opening.

An estimated 300 jobless workers were expected to apply for unemployment compensation benefits at scheduling stations today, speeding up registrations in Richland county which were retarded yesterday, opening day, by near zero weather.

Maurice K. Wells, manager of the Mansfield district branch office of the Ohio Unemployment compensation commission, said today that only 215 persons had obtained appointments yesterday for presentation of their claims after Jan. 1.

He said that the figure was a "little below" what had been expected to rush the scheduling stations on the first day. He expressed the opinion however, that at least 300 would be registered today and that by Dec. 31, approximately 2,000 jobless would have been given appointments for filing claims at the branch office early in January.

He said that two "itinerant" offices, which will be open on Wednesday and Thursday of each week, manned by two persons each, would accept applications in Shelby and Mt. Gilead.

Wells emphasized that persons signing up for appointments this week were not required to present proof of claims. He said that the registration was designed only to prevent long waiting lines of applicants when they file their claims for benefits. Payments are expected to start in February.

125 FLEE IN 20 BELOW WEATHER

Blaze Destroys Two Hotels, Four Taverns In Minnesota.

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. —(AP)— Fire that destroyed three frame buildings, housing two hotels and four taverns, routed about 125 persons early today in 20 degrees below zero weather.

The blaze started in the Valhalla tavern from a defective or overheated furnace, authorities believed. It spread quickly through the Victoris and Svea hotel buildings, adjoining the tavern and located in the older section of the city.

ALARM GROWS OVER ITALIAN COUP THREAT

Daladier Dispatches Infantry Unit to Somaliland; Hears Italy Masses Troops.

WOULD FORCE SHOWDOWN

Seizure of French Territory Would Compel France to Go to War or Mediate.

(By International News Service)

PARIS — Possibility of a sudden Italian attack upon French Somaliland is causing serious concern in high French government quarters, International News Service learned today.

Paris authorities admitted the French military situation, in the event of such an attack, would be extremely difficult. They said the Italians would be favored by heavy odds if fighting should break out in the French East African colony in view of the overwhelming Fascist military superiority in nearby areas.

Would Cause Crisis.

Fears were expressed in Paris that Premier Mussolini's tactics may be to seize Somaliland, virtually surrounded by Italian territory, in a sudden coup—thus putting France in the position of having to declare war or submit to mediation.

These fears explained the speed with which the government of Premier Edouard Daladier dispatched one battalion of infantry to Somaliland and held a second battalion, largely composed of anti-aircraft units, ready to leave at instant notice.

The government also ordered the colonial patrol boat D'Iberville to proceed from Bierut, Syria, to Djibouti, important terminus of the French-owned Addis Ababa railroad which cuts across Ethiopia and is known to be coveted by Italy.

Apprehension regarding the situation mounted rapidly following receipt of urgent appeals for reinforcements from the governor of

PAPER SUSPENDS AT SOUTH BEND

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(AP)—The South Bend News Times announced suspension of publication after Tuesday's last edition.

The suspension leaves the South Ben Tribune, a member of the Associated Press, as the city's only daily newspaper.

OK Grace Period for Night Spots on New Year Eve

New Year eve celebrators who plan to greet the new year with the "cup that cheers" will be given two and a half hours of "grace" Jan. 1, but will find the bars in Mansfield closed after 2:30 a. m., Police Chief Meade K. Bates said today.

Bates said that the regular Saturday night closing "curfew" would be extended to 2:30 a. m. Jan. 1, to conform with the state liquor control board's regulations.

He warned, however, that there would be no "winking" by Mansfield police at the closing ban set up by state law and that night club operators would be expected to suspend all operations, including dancing, at that hour.

The state liquor board, which has established liquor sale regulations for all days of the week and has suspended them on New Year eve in past years, said today that since Jan. 1 falls on Sunday that they were powerless to act because the Sunday closing hour is fixed by law.

Paris Laughs at Scribe's Picture Of Diplomacy as the Dictators Use It

But French Also Wonder If 'Interview' Isn't Close to the Truth.

PARIS — (AP) — The Independent Rightist Deputy Henri De Kerillis set Paris to laughing and wondering today by publishing in his newspaper L'Epoque an imaginary telephone conversation in which Hitler tells Mussolini how to take France's colonies.

The German chancellor begins by telling Il Duce how to receive Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain when he comes to Rome in January.

HITLER: "You begin by making him wait at the end of your famous office. You let him walk the 100 yards to your desk on a floor covered with wax, so he will fall flat once or twice before he reaches you."

MUSSOLINI: "Then I demand Tunisia, Corsica and Savoy?"

HITLER: "Don't be silly. Talk about your love for peace. Glorify the spirit of Munich. Then suddenly you swell up, shake your fist, stick out that jaw and talk about Italy's power."

Mussolini interrupts to suggest that he ask for Tunisia, Corsica and Savoy, but Hitler advises him to ask only for "Djibouti and a few advantages in the Suez canal."

HITLER: "Then you end the interview and say to him softly 'you are old and I am young. I will meet you part way for the next talk. It will be at Milan.' He accepts, and you escort him to the door taking care that he does not fall."

Mussolini again asks if he can demand Tunisia, Corsica and Savoy at Milan, but Hitler says he is to ask only for an "outlet on Lake Chad."

HITLER: "When you get that it is my turn—I will take Ukrainia."

MUSSOLINI: "But Adolf, I don't understand. Can't I take Tunisia after you get Ukrainia?"

HITLER: "You said it, Benito."

Doctor Calls Petting Show Offish

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Believe it or not, truth is stranger than fiction. If a lesser authority than Dr. Julian L. Woodward of Cornell university were responsible for the following report, we'd put it down for just another bit of good Munchhausen.

It seems, according to this authority, whose college works brings him in touch with over 5,000 students—both boys and girls—that young people "spoon" (the doctor's word) not from any innate urge, but because they want to acquire prestige among their fellow students. They want to be known as great lovers or great sirens!

Like others, we supposed students were driven to making love because of sex attractions, which has been the chief headache of educators.

"What's to be done about it?" they have wailed.

At the most susceptible period of their development, youngsters are supposed to get an education. The immemorial clash between love and books is the result. Pity the poor student who is the pawn of nature.

As a concession to the universal pitfall of love, some colleges have actually permitted students to marry. Harvard used to expel them for taking on marriage vows along with their sociology economics, and a possible course in Ovid.

Progressive universities, like Antioch college, recognizing the old proverb, "Tis love that makes the world go 'round," were more lenient. Boy and girl husbands and wives attended classes together, returned home and scrambled eggs over the single gas jet and appeared to onlookers—myself, during a visit—to be laying plans to live happily ever after.

It's hard to believe that all this young love business on the part of college students is just so much strutting But Dr. Julian L. Woodward, in a talk to educators, said that "Desire for prestige is the outstanding motivating force of campus life. And successful pursuits of the opposite sex is one way to 'shine' on the campus.

"College 'spooning' does not come from the desire for romance, but for a 'build up' in the eyes of other classmates."

In spite of Dr. Woodward, I shall still retain my sympathy for girls and boys who find it hard to keep their attention on books while Cupid continues to nudge at their elbows and puts before the printed page HIS or HER face.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"DO YOU mean?" Noel asked incredulously, "that my father deliberately trained you in a wrong rendition of this role?"

"It's a much cleverer and a more devilish scheme than that, Noel," I interposed, saving Mary the trouble of replying. I saw that already her mind was busy with the travesty of her role which Philip Veritzen had taught her, and I wished nothing to distract her mind.

"He has given her an absolutely correct rendition of the role," I went on. "Every technical point is flawless. But—well!—watch closely, and you will see what I mean."

I looked over the room with an appraising eye as to its possibilities as a stage.

"There's your entrance, Mary, my door," I said, realizing that the room, in dimensions and arrangement, was very much like the one at the Lansfield where we had been working.

"And if you two dress rehearsal attendants," I went on, smiling at Dicky and Noel, "will sit over there," —I indicated chairs across the room from the door—"the stage will be set and we'll go on with the show."

"We have our opera glasses trained," Dicky said, then added grandiloquently, "You may proceed."

"All right, Mary," I said "I'll feed you the cues, but first I'll give you the page of conversation just preceding your entrance."

"No more talk, please," I said. "And I must warn you of something else. Before this rehearsal is over, you're going to be very excited and angry. But I ask you not to make a single comment until the last line. Then you may swear all you please. Promise!"

"To swear then, or to keep quiet now?" Dicky asked.

"Both," I told him shortly, and he gave an acquiescent nod.

Her rendition of the role was, of course, an old story to me. I knew every inflection of her voice, every word she uttered before it was spoken. And, as it was the rendition upon which Philip Veritzen insisted, there was no need for me to watch for corrections. Mary was indeed letter-perfect in the lines and business he had taught her.

With a sense of being "off duty" as a preceptor, I leaned back in my chair and gave myself up to the watching of Noel's face and that of Dicky.

Strictly obeying my injunction, neither man spoke during Mary's rendition. But their faces grew steadily darker, and their eyes were smoldering with anger when she uttered her last exit line and disappeared through the open door, to reappear a second later and stand listlessly against it. As she came back, Noel, striding across the room, caught her in his arms.

"Mary! Mary!" he exclaimed "And my father did this to you! I could kill him!"

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Dec. 29.

Rather difficult and adverse situations are indicated by this day's planetary directions. There seems to be an element of disappointment if not disapproval and disturbance in employment or other contacts with superiors and those in power. However, all persons in this status are not hostile or unapproachable, and these may be conferred with in an effort to smooth out difficulties.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of mixed fortunes, with adverse conditions, possible jealousies and peculiar oppositions instigating disturbances or conflicts with superiors or employers. On the other hand, persons in influential stations are ready to come to the rescue and help readjust misunderstandings or difficulties. This may favorably affect the finances.

A child born on this day may have certain idiosyncracies which will have it running at cross-purposes with employers, superiors or those in authority. At the same time, it may have such qualities as to enlist the support and friendly interest of those in equally high position. It may gain by gambles or speculative coups.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

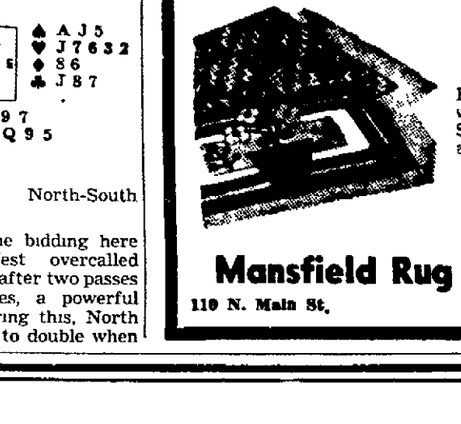
By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TOO MUCH AT STAKE

PLAYING for a two-trick set, at the risk of possibly not setting the contract at all, can not be classed as sound rubber bridge There are times when the holder of an ace-queen should lay down that ace, even though he is sure that his tenace sits immediately over the guarded king. Among these occasions are those on which he can see a likelihood of the declarer discarding his losers of that suit on set-up cards of another suit.



(Dealer: South North-South vulnerable).

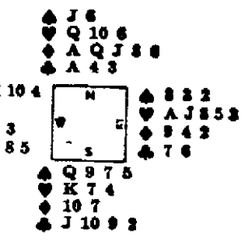
South opened the bidding here with 1-Heart. West overcalled with 2-Clubs, and after two passes South bid 2-Spades, a powerful reverse. Remembering this, North felt strong enough to double when West then bid three diamonds. South's take-out to 3-No trump, because the side would prefer a vulnerable set, made West sure that South had the guarded club K. North shifted this to 4-Spades which East doubled.

Feeling that East's double probably showed the spade A to stop a trump run, West led his singleton heart. It drew the 10, J and A. The diamond 3 then brought out the 10 and K. A spade was covered with the A by East, who led a heart for West to ruff. The diamond A completed West's book, and all he needed for a set was his club A. But he unsoundly hoped for two club tricks, so instead led a diamond.

Declarer ruffed, took two rounds of spades, cashed two high hearts, ruffed a good heart in dummy with its last trump, then took the last two tricks in diamonds, so that West got no club trick at all.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable).

If East had bid hearts in response to West's double, and West led the heart 9, how should South play for 3-No trump?

The Year in Review—

GLOBE-CIRCLER, 'WRONG-WAYER' IN JULY NEWS

Sensational Suicide Leap of Young New Yorker Also Hit Front Page.

By VOLTA TORREY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

IN THREE days, 19 hours and 8 minutes last July, Howard Hughes & Co. flew 'round the world. But July's jolliest junket was the comic-strip-style, surprise sky-solo of Douglas "California Here I Come" Corrigan from New York to Dublin.

Chapter 7 Of a Month-by-Month Review Of 1938

Hughes had the best available assistance and equipment; Corrigan sneaked to glory in a jaloppy.

The world's feet itched: England's king and queen went to Paris, made the Union Jack and the Tri-Color "seem as one flag" to British War Minister Hore-Belisha, et al. A piggy-back plane flew photos of the French frolic to America. Viscount Runciman was ordered to Czechoslovakia to check central Europe's cancer. Thirty-two countries' delegates met at Evian to see where refugees could go. And President Roosevelt went from coast to coast — attending Gettysburg's 75th and the Northwest Territory's 150th anniversary ceremonies, reviewing the fleet at San Francisco, and beaming blessings on candidates whom his foes called "rubber stamps."

Music, Maestro, Please.

Postmaster General Farley urged voters not to "unhorse" their chief. Republican Chairman Hamilton said grass would be growing in the streets but for the tramping feet of 13,000,000 people looking for work. And hillbillies went to town and elected their plump, dimpled, political maestro, W. Lee O'Daniel, governor of Texas.

Dixie, "Economic Problem No 1," clamored for freight-rate revision. ICC decided eastern railroads could charge coach passengers more. Dr. Arthur Morgan, TVA's ousted kingpin, sued for his pay. Elmer F Andrews became wage-hour chief Anti-trust charges were filed against moviemakers. Liberals discussed group-health projects, the Maytag strike and the civil liberties inquiry. Conservatives cussed NLRB and Jimmy Roosevelt's insurance income. And third-term talk was on the upbeat.

Headlined Names.

Count and Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow's sensational squabble was publicized and they subsequently were separated. Simone Simone's secretary, Sandra Martin, convicted of forgery, was ordered to lock her lips and throw the key away. Sinclair Lewis acted in a "straw hat" theater

Rumania's Queen Marie, Justice Benjamin Cardozo and Samuel Insull died in July. But no notable got more attention than did John Warde, 26, a little man who got out on a ledge 17 stories above the sidewalks of New York and smoked cigarets there for 11 hours before hurtling into oblivion

Trouble, Trouble . . .

New Mexico's Gov Clyde Tinsley passed most of the summer hunting folks, and after one long search the bodies of Medill McCormick, newspaper heir, and his companion on a mountain-climb were found Grim, too, was the item from Portugal about firemen who put some boys in a building and set it afire to demonstrate rescue methods—10 lads died.

Palestine Jews fought Arabs the way American frontiersmen battled Indians. Photos showed Roman rulers proving their fitness by hopping through fiery hoops, and Italy's press began baiting Jews France ,agreed to share control of Alexandretta (a 10,000-square-mile state in Syria) with Turkey And Bolivia and Paraguay assented to arbitration of their century-old Gran Chaco frontier feud

Spain's war was two years old and China's was one year old last July

TRACES COMMUNIST ACTIVITIES IN STIRRING UP UNREST IN U. S.

Member of the Communist party as an investigator for the American Legion, Ed Herzog, of Elyria, spoke Tuesday in Mansfield at a combined meeting of the Rotary, Kiwanis and Optimist clubs, on activities of subversive groups.

Introduced by R. B. Gardner, vice commander of the Ohio department of the American Legion, Herzog told first of the weakening of the allied armies in 1916 by communist activities in the French army and of a later "deal" between the communists and Germany whereby forces were released from the eastern front and concentrated on the western front to temporarily withstand the American forces which arrived to bolster the allies.

He then related the story of communist initiative in 1932 in planning the bonus march to Washington, which, he charged, was intended to cause a rift among World war veterans.

Herzog charged that special education is provided for members of the Communist party in training them as organizers for the CIO, and that some of these organizers are on the payroll of both the Communist party and the CIO In this connection he specifically cited persons active as labor agitators in Youngstown, Akron, Canton and Warren

Incidents associated with the Warren strike in 1937 were told in detail by the speaker, including thorough preparations, access to supplies of dynamite and nitroglycerin; total disregard for laws and interference with delivery of United States mail

Herzog, it will be recalled also testified recently before the Dies committee in Washington on communist activities in this country

R. D Iden, president of the Rotary club, presided at the meeting, which was held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, and John W. Cook was program chairman. Singing was under direction of Charles W. Conklin, Kiwanian, with William F. Black at the piano

GRANGES INDUCT

Officers of Four Groups to Be Installed at Shenandoah.

Three community granges and the county Pomona grange will install officers at joint ceremonies Saturday in the grange hall at Shenandoah.

The Shenandoah, Olivesburg, Ganges and Pomona granges will participate in the all-day ceremonies. In addition, officers of the Ganges and Shenandoah juvenile granges will be installed.

A team from the Fitchville grange will conduct the installation. C C. Mellick of Butler township will be installed as master of the county grange. A covered-dish dinner will be served in the grange hall at noon.

An installing team from Shenandoah will go to Lexington Jan. 7 to install officers of the grange in that community.

AUTO TAG PRICES DROP NEXT WEEK

Reduction for Final Quarter to Become Effective Jan. 1.

The final quarter reduction in the price of automobile and truck license plates will become effective Jan 1, Frank Beverstock, deputy registrar of the Richland County Automobile club, announced today.

Plates will not be available at a reduced price however, until Jan. 3 because of a two-day New Year holiday, Beverstock said.

Under the reduced prices, $7 plates will cost $1 75, $10 plates will cost $2 50, and $16 plates will sell for $4. The 1939 licenses will be available in March and become mandatory April 1.

Romantic Mystery-Comedy.

Virginia Bruce and Melvyn Douglas are co-starred as a detective and his wife in "There's That Woman Again," showing for three days beginning tomorrow at the Ohio. As a dumb wife of a not-so-dumb detective, Miss Bruce prefers to do a bit of sleuthing on her own rather than stay home and wash dishes as her husband would have her do. The star sets out to catch a murderer and does an excellent job. The cast also includes Stanley Ridges, Margaret Lindsay, Gordon Oliver and Pierre Watkin.

Average Man.

"Thanks for Everything," now showing at the Madison, stars Jack Haley as the winner of a $25,000 radio contest prize for the most average citizen. When he comes to New York he is taken in hand by Adolphe Menjou who sees tremendous promotion possibilities in him. Jack Oakie is appointed to trail Haley, recording his reactions and selling them to interested business men. The romantic element is maintained by Binnie Barnes and Arleen Whelan, with the musical troubador, Tony Martin, offering plenty of heart flutters

Final Showing.

The final showing of "Crime School" and "Merrily We Live" will be tomorrow at the new Ritz. The first picture features the Dead End kids in a story that shows how and why boys go wrong. Constance Bennett and Brian Aherne are starred in the second vehicle which tells the story of a mother, Billie Burke, who has a penchant for adopting tramps.

Opens Today.

Robert Montgomery and Virginia Bruce are the stars of "Yellow Jack," which opened today at the Majestic. This is the story of the study of the cause and cure of yellow fever, the struggle, the uncertainty, the battle which was waged to find the cause. It tells the heroism of a half-dozen faithful men who expose themselves to the dread disease in order to determine the virus which is responsible for so many deaths in the tropics. The second feature is "The Last Gangster" starring Edward G Robinson.

Musical Merry-Go-Round.

Four players, Bert Lahr, Jimmy Savo, Billy House and Mischa Auer find themselves the "foster fathers" of an orphaned child. After raising her to young womanhood, she (Joy Hodges) receives a proposal from a wealthy young man, and, after the four fathers receive a film offer she accepts. From this point the hilarious comedy, "Merry-Go-Round of 1938" sets out to make a complicated and entertaining plot. "F. P. I Doesn't Answer," with Leslie Fenton, Conrad Veidt and Jill Esmond is the other picture starting Thursday at the Park.

GALION—The Galion postoffice reported that last week there were 113,313 letters and greeting cards mailed by Galion people. This represented some 15 pieces of mail per person in the city. This number s larger than is ordinarily handled in an entire month.

Arrest 3, Hunt 5 Others as Blackmailers of Musica

U. S. TO QUIZ SUSPECTS IN SWINDLE CASE

Charges 8 Persons Extorted $150,000 Annually From Drug Firm's Head.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — Police held a woman and two men today and sought five more persons, all on suspicion of having blackmailed F. Donald Coster, the swindling president of McKesson and Robbins, Inc., who killed himself when he was exposed as Philip Musica, an ex-convict.

The prisoners, belligerent and uncommunicative, were Mary Brandino, 37; her brother, Joseph, 61, and Walter H. Cragg, 56, a dis-barred lawyer imprisoned in 1914 for embezzling a client's funds.

The other suspects were not named. Together they were believed to have extorted most or all of the $150,000 a year that Coster-Musica swindled from his company.

Accused of Fraud.

The three were held on federal charges of using the mail to defraud and "conspiring with others to extort sums of money from Philip Musica." They were among the few persons who knew of Coster-Musica's 18-year masquerade, during which he invaded Wall Street with the profits of bootlegging, won the confidence of financiers and organized the third largest drugs firm in the country.

It was reported that Miss Brandino had received $8,000 from Coster-Musica last year. Gregory Noonan, assistant United States attorney who ordered the arrests, said the Brandinos had been partners of Coster-Musica in 1920 in the Adelphia Drug company in Brooklyn, his first venture after he had dropped from sight a few months earlier while under indictment, as Musica, on perjury charges.

Detective John P. McAuliffe said that information about the Brandinos had been supplied by Benjamin Simon, who is held as a material witness and is believed to have served Coster-Musica as go-between in arms and munitions dealings. The swindler was believed to have tried to recoup his shortages by traffic in arms and bootleg liquor. Although his manipulations with the drugs firm left it with an $18,000,000 shortage, his thefts amounted apparently, to only about $3,000,000.

Sought $25,000 to Get Married, Ohio Youth, 20, Jailed

WAUSEON—(AP)—A 20-year-old Delta youth's attempt to obtain $25,000 so he could wed next month on his 21st birthday landed him in jail today.

Sheriff Harley Loveland said the youth, Paul Simmons, was arrested last night on charges of attempting to extort money from Fred Longnecker, also of Delta, retired paper dish manufacturer, and had admitted seeking the money so he could get married.

Loveland said a penciled note, found by Longnecker on his doorstep Christmas night, threatened death to the 60-year-old former industrialist unless printed instructions were followed.

Using Longnecker's automobile, three deputies drove along U. S. route 20 until near Maumee they saw the lights of another machine blink out a code contained in the extortion note.

The three, John Wierick, Alfred Short and Lester Irwin, said they took Simmons from that car and brought him to jail here.

DIES AT AGE 78

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 3 p. m. Friday with Rev. Paul Saleste of the St. John Evangelical church officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

Up and Down THE STREET

The Mansfield board of education pulled one of those "you-can't-let-business - interfere-with-pleasure" stunts last night. A special meeting was called by the board for last night to act on several important matters, but instead of getting together at the usual starting time, the members assembled at 5 p. m. The reason was the Mansfield-Erie, Pa., basketball game at the high school which basketball-minded members of the board did not want to miss.

The Yuncker Brothers Sports store was $4 to the good today. An anonymous letter was received by the store today from Ashland with the currency, stating that the money was for payment of goods stolen from the store several years ago. "I've learned my lesson," the letter stated, "please forget!" The handwriting is believed to be that of a woman.

* * *

City council set some kind of a record at last night's meeting when for the first time in history (according to the old timers around city hall) both the president and president pro-tem were absent. The seven members present elected C. N. Shultz, veteran Second Ward councilman to preside at the session. The three absent members were Karl P. Troll, president; George Berg, councilman-at-large, president pro-tem, and George Kyle, Third ward councilman.

Have you noticed a lot of busy signals when you used the telephone in the past two days? Blame it on the cold weather! Telephone company officials say that cold weather always brings an increase in traffic. Some of it is due to the fact that people transact business by telephone during cold weather that they would handle in person under better conditions. Some more of it is due to the fact that people, kept indoors by cold weather, just seem to get the urge to talk to someone—so they telephone.

HIT BY CAR

Condition of Port Griffith, 45, Reported Critical.

Port Griffith, 45, of 29 Clairmont avenue, was in General hospital today in a critical condition suffering from injuries received when struck by an automobile at the corner of West Fourth and Mulberry streets at 7:10 p. m. Tuesday.

Griffith suffered a number of broken ribs on the left side and internal injuries, and is in a critical condition, according to physicians.

According to a police report, Griffith was struck as he crossed Mulberry street, by a car driven by Tom Georgeff, 269 North Main street, traveling south on Mulberry.

Georgeff told police that he was traveling on the green light, and that Griffith ran across the street in the path of his car. Griffith was removed to the hospital in an ambulance.

JAPANESE GIRL DIES IN FURNACE

Police Investigate Theories of Murder and Suicide.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—(AP)—The cremation of Emiko Yamada, 16-year-old Japanese girl, was investigated today by police, who said they had not determined whether the girl had taken her own life or had been murdered.

Her body was found in the furnace at the Yamada family home and officers estimated she was cremated early yesterday. An autopsy showed death was caused by burns.

A bruise was found on the forehead but autopsy surgeons were unable to say whether it had been caused by a blow before or after the girl entered the furnace.

HUNT GIRL, 17

Police Told She's Been Missing Since Christmas Errand.

NORRISTOWN, Pa. — (AP) — A statewide police alarm was out today for Marjorie Glisson, 17-year-old high school student who has been missing since Christmas day. Her father, Alfred, said she disappeared after telling the family she was going to a store for candy.

MOURN DEATH OF ZONA GALE

Friends Saddened by Demise of Writer Who Mirrored Life in Small Town.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Zona Gale Breese, Wisconsin author whose novels and plays mirrored the small town midwestern scene, died of pneumonia last night in the Passavant hospital. She was 65.

She came to Chicago for hospital treatment three weeks ago and contracted pneumonia after her arrival. A week ago she was placed in an oxygen tent.

With her when she died was W. L. Breese, Portage, Wis., manufacturer and banker whom she married in 1929.

Miss Gale—she used her maiden name in writing—won the Pulitzer prize in 1921 for the dramatization of her novel, "Miss Lulu Bett," her best known work. She wrote more than 25 novels, plays, books of essays, verse and short stories.

The election was scheduled for this afternoon.

TRANSFERS $2,800 TO REIMBURSE CITY FUND FOR AUDITING COSTS

An appropriation of $2,869 was authorized by city council last night to re-imburse the city's general fund for the amount paid to the state for auditing purposes during the past five years.

The amount was transferred from the separate funds and includes $1,608 from the waterworks fund, $804 from the garbage fund, $27 from the sanitary sewer fund, $215 from the gasoline tax fund, and $125 from the automobile registration fee fund.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley explained that the appropriation was to reimburse the general fund for auditing charges assessed the various departments by the state auditor's office.

The charges have been paid from the city's general fund, but a recent ruling by the attorney general allows the city to place the charges against the various departments, Kelley explained.

Council also approved transfer of funds totaling $595 in other city departments.

Seven of the transfers okayed were in health department funds, and one each were included for the fire department, garbage department, and the sanitary sewer fund.

Council also authorized the settlement of the claim of William Willet and William Willett, jr., of Cincinnati for a sum of $800 for personal injuries arising out of an accident on Lexington avenue in June, 1936.

The combined claim filed in a petition in common pleas court totaled $10,590. Willet obtained a judgment of $1,200 against the city several weeks ago for the death of his wife who was killed in the accident.

WIDOW, 69, DIES

Mrs. Wilda Miles Was Native of Troy Township.

Mrs. Wilda Clyde Miles, 69, of near Lexington, widow of Lee Miles, died in the General hospital Tuesday after a lingering illness. She was born in Troy township, Aug. 1, 1869, the daughter of Jacob and Parcilla Burrow Goldsmith and spent the greater part of her life in that vicinity.

A son, Reed, at home; three daughters, Mrs. William Smullens of Los Angeles, Calif., Mrs. Vaughn Lemon of Mansfield, and Mrs. Arlo Stull of Lexington, and a brother, Charles Goldsmith of Galion, survive.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 1 p. m. Friday with Rev. E. E. Syler of Massillon and Rev. J. J. Adams of Iberia officiating. Burial will be in the Bloominggrove cemetery.

PLAN SEEKS TO KEEP U. S. HIGH IN PLANE POWER

Roosevelt Proposal Would Give Training to 20,000 Young Pilots Annually.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt's plans to train 20,000 civilian aviators a year provided another indication today of his determination to keep the United States high in the ranks of world air powers.

The program, as disclosed at a White House press conference and by the civil aeronautics authority, contemplates experimental training of about 300 students in a dozen colleges this spring.

If congress votes sufficient funds, the training will be offered at several hundred colleges and universities in the fall. Mr. Roosevelt estimated it would cost $9,800,000 for a year's schooling for 20,000 pilots.

The cream of the new fliers, under tentative plans, would find opportunities for military careers in the expanded army and navy air forces.

Only Adequate Safeguard.

"Only by such an approach," said the civil aeronautics authority, "can the United States adequately safeguard itself against the vast aerial militarization programs now being pressed with fanatic zeal by foreign powers."

The pilot training project was the first of the president's far-reaching rearmament plans to be made public in detail.

Steps already have been taken for a parallel training of aviation mechanics. In the view of some military officials, mechanics are even more moderately essential for a greatly expanded American air force such as Mr. Roosevelt is believed to be ready to propose to congress.

In general, the civil aeronautics authority is to direct the training of pilots, and the national youth administration the schooling of mechanics.

Other parts of the aviation program which have come to light are:

1. Expansion of the army air corps to a force of upwards of 10,000 planes, including training planes, craft assigned to the national guard, and planes held in reserve.

2. Expansion of the commercial aircraft industry and its maintenance at top capacity with commercial domestic and export orders as well as military contracts.

FREE 12 HOURS

Inmate, 'Homesick' for Parents, Returns to O. S. R.

Robert Matulovich, 25, Ohio State reformatory trusty who stole 12 hours of freedom Monday because he was "homesick," today was back in the institution with six months tacked on his sentence.

Matulovich walked into the institution yesterday and gave himself up to one of the guards on duty, Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said.

He escaped late Monday from the institution greenhouse outside the prison walls where he was employed as a trusty. He said that he had become "homesick" and had gone to Cleveland to see his parents.

Glattke said that six months had been added to Matulovich's sentence instead of the usual two years for an escape because he returned of his own volition. Matulovich was committed to the reformatory Dec. 27, 1935 from Cuyahoga county on a charge of robbery for a 10 to 25 year term.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Hitler Has No Grounds for Complaint on Anti-Nazi Remarks From U. S.

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Anyone who recalls Adolf Hitler's hysterical insults to the president of Czechoslovakia only a few weeks ago must agree that in complaining of intemperate speech on the part of Harold Ickes, the Nazi government comes into court with filthy hands and a foul mouth.

Since Hitler got away with that, he and his press have crowded their luck, and have gone so far as to edit the ballot in Britain and the press in numerous countries, and are trying to coerce the French courts in the celebrated Grynszpan case.

These developments, of themselves, may be none of this country's business, but they must be considered in connection with the Nazi threat of some time back to take an unpleasant interest in the affairs of that nation, to wit, this one, whose people habitually wear their hats in the house, put their feet on the table and spit chewing gum at the walls. The Ickes' speech and the ensuing protest affords a useful opportunity for the nation of gangsters to declare itself on the subject of insulting repartee starting in Germany.

* * *

It is idiotic and may yet prove tragic that nations must address each other in the terms of bums bawling along a bar in a low saloon, but the Germans sounded the pitch and have just about exhausted not only the patience but the nerves of the civilized races.

The same position that was expressed to the Nazi government should be communicated to Mussolini's government, too, for the Italian press is no less official than the German and has been equally malicious.

* * *

Americans are inclined to overlook the fact that every dirty comment on the American people, the country and the government which appears in a German or Italian paper, has the same official character as an utterance by the Fuehrer or the Duce. A newspaper in either of those countries is as much a part of the government as the army or navy, and it is not correct to regard their writers as prostitutes of journalism, because they have no more rights to refuse to write false or scurrilous matter about the Americans than an officer has to refuse to shell an open town in Spain, however unpleasant he may find the task.

American newspaper comment is unofficial, and while it may be a more or less accurate expression of popular sentiment, the government is not answerable for it.

When Ickes sounds off, however, his remarks, if not disavowed, are official, but nothing that he and the president himself have said about Germany and Italy compare in hostility with the official expressions about this country which have appeared in the German and Italian press.

And, of course, they have avoided the filth which is characteristic of the controlled press in those countries.

Since Munich, the Nazis have plainly indicated that certain Englishmen may be given responsible positions in the British government only at the risk of their displeasure, perhaps of war, and the British and French press both have choked up at times under the threats from Berlin and Rome, lest the free press be accused of provoking a war.

Italy aside for the moment, this country has now admonished Hitler to the same effect that Jimmy Gerard is said to have admonished the kaiser when the All-Highest remarked that there were vast numbers of Kaiser-true hyphenates dwelling in the United States who would sabotage this country in the event of trouble. Gerard's reply is said to have been that there was also a lamp-post from which to hang each of them.

* * *

In the present case the American government has drawn a line, and by implication has placed on the Nazi side of it all those conspirators belonging to the anti-American bunds and other fellow-traveling Nazi societies which have been carrying out the Nazi threat to take an unpleasant interest in American internal affairs.

As to the official character and responsible nature of the foul observations about this country which have appeared in Germany and Italy, the Germans openly accepted guilt only a short time ago when they demanded that the Greek government moderate the tone of its press toward Germany. The excuse was made that the Greek, like the German press, was not official, though it was controlled, and Berlin promptly replied that because the Greek press was controlled the Nazis would regard its contents as official and hold the government responsible for all offensive utterances.

* * *

That covers the case between Berlin and Washington, too, and gives the Nazis a far greater list of offenses to apologize for than Ickes, La Guardia and the president have amassed in their comparatively restrained comments to date.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Addenda on the projected "hottest" films:

"Confessions of a Nazi Spy," announced by Warner Bros. for immediate production, is in line with this studio's predeliction for capitalizing on news sensations. It was first with realistic gang film successes, first with a racket-busting movie, first to attempt a film treatment of labor troubles ("Black Fury"), first to picture hooded terror in "Black Legion."

In recent months, sparked by its president, Harry M. Warner, it has undertaken a patriotic crusade through the medium of short subjects, most of which have been of movingly dramatic as well as patriotic interest. President Warner's American Legion talk on Americanism was a sincere expression of his feelings—and the anti-Nazi film plan reflects these as well as a probable hope to profit from a quick and sensational headline movie.

Warner has no German market to lose. Certain other companies, with heavy investments abroad, may have officials who feel as deeply personally as the Warners; these companies, however, may be expected to take the attitude of silent hope for an ultimate change in the foreign set-up.

* * *

"Things will iron out in time," said one unofficial spokesman. "Meanwhile, it would be foolhardy for us to put out any 'hit-and-run' pictures for possible immediate profits." . . .

Walter Wanger, producer of the anti-war film "Blockade" which spoke out strongly against modern war and got itself (without intention, I sincerely believe) condemned as an anti-religious argument, has a script of "Personal History" ready to go.

Written by John Howard Lawson, who scripted "Blockade" also, the yarn uses only the title of Vincent Sheean's best-selling narrative. Barring future changes, the film's German episodes will have the American hero rescuing the heroine's father, a kindly Jewish doctor subjected to persecution.

If Chaplin follows his usual procedure on his comedy of dictatorship, his picture might be "dated" before he goes into production. . . . He has been thinking it up for two years now—and he starts work on a picture when the spirit moves him, not before.

* * *

"Idiot's Delight," now in production, is still anti-war in theme but has been shorn of its thorns where Italy is concerned. The setting is now "mythical" with Esperanto as its national language.

Hollywood's self-censors seldom submit scripts to foreign consulates directly, but consult with them on occasion after checking indirectly on possible objections. . . . (But I doubt if the German consul will be consulted on "Nazi Spy"!)

Only once has a president of the United States intervened directly in a movie production . . . President Wilson let it be known quietly, in pre-war days, that the villain's nationality in the serial "Patria" might prove embarrassing to this government in international relations. The late Warner Oland became a menace-without-a-country to Heroine Irene Castle.

College Freshman Stars Play At High School Friday

A TEAM of outstanding Ohio college freshman basketball stars will strut its wares on the Mansfield high school court Friday night.

Due to a dance to be held in the gym Friday night, the game is scheduled at 7:30. No preliminary game will be played.

The frosh quintet will meet an all-star team composed of City Class A league performers, Vern Jones, president of the circuit, announced today.

Freshmen from Ohio State, Ohio Wesleyan, Kent State and Depauw university will make up the City league team's opponent, which has been assembled by Noel Morgan, former Mansfield high star.

In addition to Morgan, a freshman at Ohio Wesleyan, the former Tygers in the lineup will be Johnny Hallabrin, a mainstay of last season's Mansfield quintet, who is now at Ohio State; Bill Boliantz of Kent State; Bob Spear of Depauw and Russ Hoff, also of Ohio Wesleyan.

The college team's lineup will also include three of the outstanding high school cagers of the 1937-38 season.

They are Bud Mercer of Newark, Eddie Lore of Mt. Vernon and Bob Kincaid of Middletown. Mercer, a freshman at Ohio Wesleyan, was the sparkplug of the Newark state title team. He established a new tournament scoring record in the state finals.

Lore needs no introduction to Mansfield basketball fans as he appeared with the Yellow Jackets against the Tygers on several occasions. He set a new N. C. O. conference scoring record last season.

Kincaid was probably the most talked of high school performer in the state last season when he led all high school players in scoring.

Lore is now located at Ohio Wesleyan, while Kincaid is at Ohio State. Kincaid, who also was prominent in high school football, and Hallabrin were rated as two of the best Ohio State freshman backs this years.

This lineup of stars will be opposed by a team which will include members from each club in the City league. Each team will contribute two players to be selected by their respective coaches, with the undefeated and pace-setting Yuncker Sports furnishing three men, Jones said. The players selected will be announced later.

KANSAS EDITOR GIVES HIS VIEWS ABOUT GRID GAME.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, who edits the Emporia, Kans., Gazette, is not a football enthusiast, we judge from a clipping of a recent editorial.

WHITE

"Just now," writes Mr. White, "the American people, and particularly those west of the Mississippi, are enjoying an exhibition that is a disgrace to the college life in this part of the world. The exhibition is the preliminary stage of the football contest between Duke university in North Carolina and the University of Southern California, to be pulled off in the Rose Bowl, the football classic, Jan. 2. Here are two institutions which have nothing but money back of them. Academically they are fourth or fifth raters in this country. They are notorious for the beefy morons who play on their football teams.

"Every academic ideal is prostituted by an institution that stresses football. The ideal is to keep the brawny numbskulls in some kind of class standing. Money stinks all over the campus of such institutions. People raise their eyebrows when anyone claims a degree, earned or unearned, from one of them. Their football classics are nothing but sporting events. Its academic flavor is imitation and a poor grade of imitation at that.

"To this low level has college football sunk in this country. The Gazette is glad of it. It should sink lower. Just how much lower it will have to sink before intelligent college presidents, college faculties and college trustees wake up to the fact that football has no place on the college campus, we shudder to think. Of course the whole trouble with college football is not the campus but the alumnus. That trouble goes back to the kind of material the college accepts and holds in classes and finally graduates. A good 20 per cent of the people who go to college go there for social reasons and they bring out what they take in—a slimy social veneer, an assurance in their ignorance, and a brass that is a disgrace to their academic training.

"The spectacle of the University of Southern California and Duke university putting on a 22-man prizefight in the so-called Rose Bowl is a gorgeous example of what our academic ideals in this country have brought colleges to. Duke and Southern California are not unique. They are just caricatures of realistics, bitter realities, in our college life."

Judging from the comment, it probably would be useless to send Mr. White a couple of passes for the Rose Bowl game.

Tygers Turn Back Erie, Pa., Challenge, 28-26

Break Losing Streak

Murphymen Rally in Third Period to Hang Up First Win in Four Games.

By OSCAR RUHL

A LEAD built up in the early minutes of the third period carried the hoopsters of Mansfield high school to their first victory since the opening game of the season at the expense of the touring Erie, Pa., Strong Vincent cagemen by a 28 to 26 margin at the Tyger lair last night.

The Tygers halted their three-game losihg streak before the smallest crowd to see a game at the Mansfield high school plant in several years. Near-zero weather, rather than a lack of interest in the Tygers, held the crowd to a few hundred.

Pressed Entire Way.

Coach Russ Murphy's men played good and bad ball in last night's setto, and, despite the fine advantage they gained in hurried order in the third period, they were pressed all the way by the visitors.

Mansfield never trailed after the first couple of minutes of play, but it was forced to halt a threatening rally late in the game with a stalling game to stave off defeat.

The Tygers led 7 to 4 at the end of the first period and 13 to 11 at the intermission. With Tommy Scott, who again was Mansfield's outstanding performer, leading the way, the Tygers lengthened their margin rapidly in the third quarter.

Murphy's men extended their lead to six points in the early minutes which was the biggest lead they held at anytime after the opening quarter. Strong Vincent reduced the count to 26 to 22 before the end of the third period.

The Sam Kramer-coached Vincents threw caution to the wind in the fourth period in their bid for their first basketball victory over Mansfield, but they were unable to collect more than two baskets in the heated quarter.

Mansfield made only a few attempts to score in the final period as it concentrated on protecting its slim lead. The Tygers scored only two free throws in the last period.

Murphy instructed his cagers to go into their stalling game at the start of the final four minutes. This strategy opened up the basket on several occasions, but they missed set-up shots.

Vincent tried desperately to score on long shots the few times they gained the ball in the fading minutes, but they were all off their mark except one, Karle accounting for the only Erie field goal after the Tygers went into their stall.

Although the Tygers again missed numerous shots, it was ragged passing which caused them most of their trouble in the first three periods. The Tygers lost the ball time and again in the offensive zone because of poor throws.

Bill Reinecke was the chief visiting threat. The Vincent center was high scorer of the game with three field goals and four foul shots. Scott, Jack Dugger and Jack Lyons accounted for 24 of the 28 Mansfield points, with the former setting the pace with nine. Lyons contributed eight and Dugger, seven.

Mansfield's marksmanship at the foul line gave it the edge. Both teams scored 10 baskets, with the Tygers converting eight out of 12 free throws Vincent made good only six of its 15 shots.

Lose In Overtime.

In a thrill-packed preliminary game, Union high school varsity took the measure of the Mansfield reserves, 21 to 19, in an overtime game. De Long, a substitute guard, who missed a chance to win the game in regulation time when he was off on a free throw in the fading seconds, gave his team the victory with a shot from behind the foul line shortly after the start of the overtime.

Lehman, who led Union in scoring with nine points, made two field goals in the final minutes to send the game into the overtime period.

Wins Without Field Goals

Carpenter Takes Tourney Game at Foul Line.

West Fifth, Hedges and Carpenter hung up the victories in the opening games of the Grade school basketball tournament being conducted at the Y. M. C. A. this week.

In probably the most unusual game staged in the city this season, Carpenter defeated Newman without scoring at least one field goal. Carpenter won the game on three fouls, 3 to 0.

Hedges limited Western to one field goal as it won 14 to 1, and West Fifth turned back Brinkerhoff, 12 to 7.

Today's games at the Y sent Woodland against Bushnell, Prospect against Bowman and Hedges against West Fifth. Semi-final games are scheduled at 2 and 3 p. m. Thursday, with the finals Friday afternoon.

1938 The Year In Sports

Baseball

By DILLON GRAHAM

NEW YORK—(AP)—Baseball saluted its first triple-champion in 1938 as the New York Yankees won the World Series for the third straight year.

McGraw's teams had tried, and so had those of Connie Mack and Miller Huggins, but this Yankee club of Joe McCarthy's was the first to triumph in three fall classics in a row.

The Yankees again dominated baseball. After a stiff fight during the first half of the American league schedule, the Yanks breezed ahead of Boston and Cleveland. Then they polished off their National league rivals, the Chicago Cubs, four straight, in the autumn Series.

Attendance reached a new all-time high of more than 10,000,000 in a year that produced a real threat to Babe Ruth's 60-home-run record in Hank Greenberg; an epidemic of sore arms; the most spectacular stretch struggle in 17 years for the National league pennant; two successive no-hit, no-run pitching performances by Johnny Vander Meer and six managerial changes.

Cleveland, sparked by Rookie Third-Baseman Ken Keltner, made a great pennant bid for five months but the Indians' charge was halted in August when the Yanks swept a 3-game series. Absence of pitching strength kept Boston, which finished second, from seriously challenging New York.

The National league race was tighter than a tick right down to the wire. Pittsburgh, out front since July, surrendered the lead in the final week to Chicago. The Cubs, with a rally that won 21 and tied 2 of their last 27 games, grabbed the rail by smashing the Pirates in a crucial 3-game series.

Series A Breeze.

The injury-riddled New York Giants, victors the two preceding seasons, faded first. Then Cincinnati skidded out of contention in the last fortnight. The Reds, cellar occupants in 1937, were the sensation of the year. Spirited rookie stars, under the tutelage of wily Will McKechnie, paced the Reds into a first-division finish. But for injuries the Boston Bees might also have been a factor in the race.

The World Series was just a romp for the Yanks. Bill Lee, who featured the Cubs' pennant drive by pitching four consecutive shutouts, was walloped twice. The Series' only drama came in the second game when Diz Dean, sailing along comfortably and with victory almost in sight, was upset by home runs by Frankie Crosetti and Joe DiMaggio.

Crosetti and Rookie Second-Baseman Joe Gordon of the Yanks and Joe Marty and Stanley Hack of the Cubs were the individual stars. Lefty Gomez, although driven from the box, was credited with his sixth Series victory against no defeats. Red Ruffing won two games for the Yanks.

Comeback honors for the year went to Jimmy Foxx, Boston first baseman, who rose from a .285 average in 1937 to win both the batting championship, with a mark of .349, and the most valuable player award. He led both leagues in runs batted in with 174.

The batting leader of the senior loop, Botcho Lombardi of Cincinnati, likewise won the National league's most valuable designation.

Ruffing with 21 triumphs and Lee with 22 were the hurling aces.

Sore arms twitched in both leagues. Carl Hubbell of the Giants had to undergo surgery. The famed left arm of Bob Grove of the Boston Red Sox suddenly went dead in mid-season. Van Lingle Mungo turned in his Brooklyn uniform long before the season ended. Johnny Allen's ailing flipper blasted Cleveland's hopes. Detroit's Schoolboy Rowe and the St. Louis Cardinals' Paul Dean were shunted back to the minors.

And Diz Dean, central figure in the biggest player deal of the year, pitched only 75 innings after the Cardinals sold him to the Cubs for $185,000 and three players, highest price ever paid for a hurler.

Hartnett replaced Charles Grimm as manager at Chicago. Del Baker succeeded Mickey Cochrane at Detroit. Ray Blades followed Frankie Frisch with the St. Louis Cardinals, Leo Durocher took Burleigh Grimes' job at Brooklyn, James Prothro replaced Jimmy Wilson with the Philadelphia Phillies and Fred Haney succeeded Gabby Street with the St. Louis Browns.

Other highlights:

Greenberg hit 58 homers, two short of Ruth's record.

Lou Gehrig hit below .300 for the first time during his Yankee career but continued his consecutive-game string.

Babe Ruth returned in mid-season as a Brooklyn coach, but was cut adrift after the campaign ended.

The National league won the All-Star game, 4-1.

Commissioner K. M. Landis exposed the St. Louis "chain-gang" farm system in the spring and freed some 100 players.

The chief holdout was DiMaggio, who asked $40,000 but signed after the season started for $25,000. His late start handicapped DiMaggio and he did not equal his fine performance of 1937.

Monte Pearson of the Yanks pitched the only no-hit, no-run game in the American league.

Grover Cleveland Alexander was named to baseball's Hall of Fame.

'eller's Record.

Cleveland's Bob Feller set a new major-league strikeout record of 18, but lost the game to Detroit.

Outstanding rookies were Vander Meer, and Frank McCormick of Cincinnati. Gordon of the Yankees, Keltner of Cleveland, and Geoffrey Heath of Cleveland.

Kansas City, American Association winner, beat Newark, International league champion, in the "Little World Series" in a battle between clubs owned by Col. Jake Ruppert, proprietor of the Yankees.

Monty Stratton, crack young pitcher, was lost to the Chicago White Sox in December when his leg was amputated following a hunting accident.

JIMMY FOXX
Comeback Champion.

Unbeaten Lutheran, Methodist Quintets Meet at Y Tonight

Th keenest rivalry in the Class A Church league belongs to the First Lutheran and First M. E. quintets. Their meetings in recent years have had more to do with deciding the league races than any other rivalry.

Tonight these two clubs come together for the first time this season, and this meeting will determine the league leadership, temporarily, at least. Both teams are undefeated.

The Lutheran and Methodists are scheduled to tangle in the third game on tonight's program at 8:45.

In the first game at 6:45, Park Avenue Baptists meet St. John. Episcopal and Temple Emanuel tangle in the second game. A game between Central M. E. and Mayflower will close the bill.

SPTS — SCORE VICTORY ....

Mayflower Congregational cagers had a close call last night at the Y. M. C. A., but they came back in the fourth period to punch out a 19 to 16 victory over First M. E. in the most interesting game on the Church Class B league card.

Trailing 8 to 5 at the half, the Methodists gained the lead in the third period, only to succumb to a Mayflower rally in the final quarter. Laird led the winners with eight points.

Moorehead tallied 11 points as he led First Christian to a 23 to 14 triumph over South Main and Columbus was high in the scoring column as St. John trimmed Central M. E., 25 to 14. Collins, who scored a dozen points, paced First Presbyterian to a 31 to 19 victory over Park Avenue Baptist.

No Drastic Changes Planned in Football Code

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Lou Little of Columbia university, chairman of the rules committee of the National Football Coaches association, said today he believed the gridiron would get a "breathing spell" from major rule changes.

The committee meets today but is not expected to adopt any radical revisions. The coaches opened their four-day annual meeting last night.

"At least, we aren't planning to recommend any drastic changes," Little said. "The trend is away from that idea. Coaches are being more conservative about radical revisions of the code. Most of us feel that football needs to catch up with the rules."

Little indicated these three suggestions would be discussed:

1. A proposal sponsored by Coach Pat Hanley of Boston university concerning protection for a "safety zone" for passers. Under it, a defensive player would be penalized 15 yards if he "roughed" the passer after the latter had thrown the ball and still was standing in the "safety zone." This zone would be approximately three yards laterally and three yards backwards.

2. Accidental hitting of an ineligible receiver by a forward pass. Under the present rule, this results in loss of the ball where the play originated. Little said it had been suggested that the pass be declared incomplete and the penalty be loss of a down.

3. Commission of a foul by an offensive player while a punted ball is free. The present rule calls for loss of the ball to the opposing team where the play originated.

SELLING HOLDS BACK MARKET, PRICES LOWER

Followers of Rail Shares Find Cheer in Reports of Increased Income.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The drag of year-end selling again held the stock market back today and prices mostly drifted a little lower.

Slipping were U. S. Steel, Union Pacific, J. I. Case, Goodrich, American Telephone, Kennecott, Santa Fe, Chrysler, General Motors and Sears Roebuck.

Electric Boat, Boeing and U. S. Rubber went against the main trend for small gains.

Major commodities held steady, with grains firm. Bonds were uneven in a narrow market.

Liquidation for tax purposes was rated by brokers a primary influence in the decline.

Followers of the rail shares found some post-Christmas cheer in the estimate that November net operating income of class A roads approximated $50,000,000 compared with $32,440,290 in November, 1937, a gain of 54 per cent.

Diverting attention from the sharp year-end curtailment in steel operations was the "Iron Age" forecast that the industry's operations next week would rebound to around 50 per cent of capacity from 40 per cent or less this week.

The American Institute of Steel Construction reported November orders booked by the structural end of the industry were the largest for any month since July, 1937.

'Snubbed,' German Writers Charge At Lima Conference

LIMA, Peru — (U.P.) — German newspaper men, in a cabled protest to Berlin, have charged Dr. Carlos Concha, Peruvian foreign minister with deliberately offending the German and Italian governments by failing to invite German and Italian newspaper correspondents to a Pan-American conference cocktail party, it was learned today.

A seperate protest was sent to German Minister Willy Nobel here, and a German legation spokesman said he was considering whether to take action.

As a result of the incident, German correspondents boycotted the final activities of the Pan-American conference here, as they boycotted the recent dinner at London at which Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain criticized the newspapers.

Italian newspaper men refused to join in the protest, saying that they believed there had been a misunderstanding.

President Oscar R. Benavides gave the cocktail party yesterday, in honor of foreign newspaper men attending the conference, to mark the last day of formal activities.

OPPOSE PLAN TO SHIFT ASHLAND COUNTY ROAD

Savannah Village and School Officials Protest Change in State Route 545.

ASHLAND—Village and school officials of Savannah presented numerous protests to highway department officials in connection with the latter's proposed change to have state route 545 pass in front of the Savannah-Clear Fork school.

The proposed change would mean that the Savannah-Olivesburg road, beginning on West street at the junction of 545 and the south corporation line and running to the intersection of the corporation line with route 250 for a distance of 530 feet, pass in front of the Savannah-Clear Creek school, increasing traffic at that point.

During the public meeting held here, there were no objections received from the residents of the stretch where the proposed change would take place.

The decision as to whether the proposed change will go through, will be decided by I. R. Ault, director of the highways.

APPROPRIATE $17,500.

ASHLAND — County commissioners here made partial appropriations totaling $17,500 to provide funds until the board can meet in the new year for further appropriations.

From the fund appropriated by the commissioners, $12,500 went for county roads department, $2,500 for aid to dependent children, $500 for aid to the blind, $1,500 for soldiers' relief and $500 for aid to crippled children.

ASHLAND — Funeral services for Ronald Eugene Kiefer, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Kiefer, who died at the home of his parents, Monday evening, were held this afternoon at the Christian church with Rev. Frank W. Brown officiating.

Ronald was born in Ashland, Aug. 5, 1936. He was a member of the Cradle Roll of the Christian church Sunday school. He is survived by his parents; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Eby; a grandfather, Mr. H. C. Kiefer, and an infant sister.

DIES IN CHICAGO

GALION—Funeral services were held in Chicago today for Mrs. Maud (Kretz) Comes, who died at her home in Chicago on Christmas day. She was an aunt of Joe E. Schnauz of Galion.

LAW TO BRING RETIREMENT OF COUNTY WORKER

Custodian of Courthouse Only Employe Expected to Quit Under New State Plan.

The Public Employes Retirement plan which becomes effective Jan. 1 is expected to bring the retirement of only one Richland county employe — Jacob Laubscher, a custodian at the courthouse.

He is the only county appointive employe past 70 years old, and since retirement under 70 is optional under the plan, other workers probably will continue on the job, Deputy Auditor Arthur S. Beck, who is in charge of the county retirement records, predicted today. Laubscher has not been active in recent months.

Approximately 70 per cent of the 125 eligible county workers are participating in the state pension plan, Beck said.

Majority Younger Workers.

The highest percentage of participation is among the younger workers who will profit most if they continue as public employes, he pointed out.

There are a number of county employes past 60 who have long service records who will also reap considerable benefit from the plan when they retire on pensions, Beck said.

Participation in the plan is optional with present employes, but all appointive workers who start work after Jan. 1 must participate in the pension program. Workers may retire at 60, and retirement at 70 is compulsory unless the head of the worker's department permits him to continue on the job. After 1942 all participating workers must retire at 70.

The plan calls for monthly contributions from participating workers and the payment of pensions after their retirement, with the amount of pensions depending upon the salary and length of service of the employe.

MOCK RESIGNS POST WITH CITY

Sewer Survey Faces Delay as Special Engineer Was Due to Head Detailed Check.

no definite program to meet contemplated needs for the future.

Mock will assume his new duties Jan. 1, he said. He plans to move his family to Cleveland.

Mock came to Mansfield as a designing engineer in October, 1936, following a leak survey of the city water distribution system. He completed a comprehensive survey of the city's water distribution system and was instrumental in working for the Woodland water improvement.

Last July council abolished the job of designing engineer and Mock was put in charge of construction of the recently completed Woodland water improvement.

Mock in his resignation to council recommended that council give "immediate" consideration to the sewer survey requested by the state health department.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter urged council to "take action" on the request in preparing the annual appropriations bill.

"It is absolutely necessary that we take this action at once," the mayor said. "And I ask the finance committee in arranging their appropriations for the coming year to make all appropriations that can be reasonably made for this purpose."

Mystics? They're of No Help to Us, Sheriff Asserts

"We don't need crystal gazers and mystics to help us solve our cases," Sheriff E. P. Long said today, taking exception to a story in yesterday's News-Journal which said a Mansfield fortune teller had set Richland and Ashland county officers on the trail of an alleged chicken thief.

Resentful of the interference that the fortune teller's crystal reading might lead to an arrest of an Akron suspect in the case, the sheriff added that "any arrests that are made will be made on evidence, not on crystal gazing."

Admitting that Mrs. W. C. Smith of Monroe township had conferred with a Mansfield fortune teller who told her who stole 25 chickens from her farm home Saturday night, Sheriff Long said he had evidence from a reliable source" before he went to Akron with Sheriff Dale Hammond of Ashland county to track down a suspect.

No arrest had been made today, although both sheriffs believed they had enough evidence on which to base a charge against the suspect, a former resident of the Lucas community.

"Any belief that fortune tellers can solve crimes will send every victim to a mystic for the solution," Sheriff Long said.

"We are willing to co-operate with anyone who has reliable information on a case, but the mystics are out," he added.

SEND TROOPS TO AFRICAN COLONY

French Alarm Increases Over Threatened Italian Coup in Somaliland.

French Somaliland. The precautions were taken in view of reports that Italian military reinforcements had been sent to the French colony's frontiers and that six new garrisons of 500 Italian and Ascari (native) troops each had been established within French Somaliland's border.

Hear Troops 'Massing.'

The French foreign office sought to turn aside reports that Italian troops were "massing" along the Somali frontiers, but no effort was made to deny that Fascist military posts were established in contested territory between Ethiopia and French Somaliland — territory which authorities here contend is French.

Should hostilities break out and the Italian forces seize the French colony, it was believed here, France would not be likely to attempt to recapture it, owing to the French tactical position.

Instead, France probably would retaliate elsewhere, probably by attacking Italy proper.

It is felt that Il Duce is convinced of this, and feels France would hesitate before taking any such drastic step. Which might run the risk of plunging Europe into the major war that Britain and France sought to avoid when they negotiated the four-power peace agreement with Italy and Germany at Munich.

Rather than risk war, Mussolini is believed to hold the opinion that France would enter into mediation on the East African question, with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of England as mediator.

According to French authorities, the crisis may come before Chamberlain arrives in Rome next month for his "appeasement" talk with Mussolini.

Accused Broker Visits Actress

Charged with using the mails to defraud in connection with the Philippine railway bond case, William P. Buckner, jr., wealthy New York broker, free under $5,000 bond, is pictured with screen actress Loretta Young, whom he visited in Hollywood over the Christmas holidays. A federal court granted the financier permission to make a two-weeks' visit in California for "business purposes."

APPROVES LOAN

Shelby Council Acts to Borrow Against Taxes for Relief.

SHELBY—City council passed a resolution last night at an adjourned session to borrow $5,000 from the anticipated revenue from the utilities, beer and admission taxes for the next three years to finance its relief program.

The resolution passed on a 4 to 1 vote with Councilman Charles Swanger opposing. Councilman Swanger told council that he thought they were just "mortgaging the future" to provide additional funds for relief by borrowing on revenue for years to come.

Under an amendment passed by the state legislature in July, Shelby may borrow up to 90 per cent of the probable revenue from the beer, utilities and admission taxes. Shelby could borrow $5,050 on the revenue for the next three years, Mayor D. B. Young told council.

A report given by Finance Director Bert Fix preceding the vote on the resolution showed that the $4,000 appropriated for relief for this year had been spent and that additional revenue would be needed to pay December's relief bills. Shelby pays about $900 a month for relief purposes.

SPUR OFFENSIVE

Spain's Insurgents Capture 16 Towns, 7,000 Prisoners.

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish frontier)—(AP)—Insurgent armies were reported today to be continuing their drive into Catalonia "on all fronts" along the 75-mile line between Tremp and Ribarroja, on the river Ebro.

Insurgent newspapers said that the six-day-old offensive toward Tarragona and Barcelona, on the Mediterranean, had captured more than 386 square miles of territory, at least 16 towns, scores of villages and 7,000 prisoners.

Fresh gains were reported especially southeast of Lerida, the insurgent base. Granadellas, 20 miles south-southeast of Lerida, was reported surrounded.

were hoisted along the Atlantic seaboard as the cold spread to the coast.

Wyoming, Colorado, Montana, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and the Dakotas were the principal cold spots on the weather map. Sub zero temperatures were general in Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Scores of Christmas holiday visitors still were marooned in northern Michigan where county officials prohibited travel on snow-blocked or ice-covered highways. In some areas rural mail deliveries were cancelled.

One death from exposure was recorded in Indiana where temperatures dropped steadily to zero and sub-zero levels. A veteran woodsman froze to death in northern Pennsylvania woods walking to a lumbering camp.

The cold wave brought intense suffering to the poor. Hundreds sought shelter at police stations in the larger cities. Thousands of homeless slept in New York subways or in crowded bowery missions and welfare department shelters. The metropolis missed the main force of the storm but temperatures fell far below freezing.

Coldest spot in the nation was Warroad, Minn., near Lake Superior, where the temperature was 37 below zero. The nation's "icebox," Devil's Lake, N. D., had 22 below.

The cold reached into the south where sub-normal temperatures prevailed in Florida and westward to California. Local frosts were reported in southern California. It was 13 degrees above zero at Enid, Okla. Fruit growers in Texas were fearful that their crops would be damaged by frost.

The cold struck so suddenly in the midwest that livestock was hard hit, farmers finding it impossible to prepare adequate shelter.

Telephone and telegraph communications with Manistique, Mich., a city of 5,000 population, were broken. Six foot drifts blocked highways. Houghton, Mich., reported 21 inches of snow.

Temperatures were falling fast throughout the mid-south and were expected to reach sub-freezing levels in northern Florida today.

The lowest reading at Chicago was 2 above but was expected to drop to six below. The city has had no sub-zero weather in three years.

Let's CUT UP an ELECTRIC BILL

It used to be a "light" bill. But that was years ago. Today it is an "electric service" bill, because providing light is only one of the dozens of jobs that electricity now does in the home . . . perfectly . . . silently . . . ECONOMICALLY. Electricity guards the food in your refrigerator . . . washes and irons the family clothes . . . toasts the bread . . . cleans the rugs . . . makes the coffee . . . warms the bed . . . brings you the world's finest entertainment . . . cooks the meals . . . and countless other jobs. It's always there, at the snap of a switch. And it will stay on the job, uncomplainingly, until it is done no matter how long it takes. But although it does all these things day in and day out, your electric service bill is the SMALLEST of all the bills in your family's budget — less than two per cent of the average family's annual cost of living. So use it freely . . . because ELECTRICITY IS CHEAP.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1938.

Keep in mind that 1939 will not be a leap year—except for pedestrians.

If the energy of many people was no greater during the day than it is at getting up time there would be a real depression.

Word comes from Belgium of a "plan" that demands $10,000 a year for every citizen, nine months vacation, and free rent, heat and light—the California influence, no doubt.

Holiday Hazards on the Highways.

ANOTHER several days may pass before the actual total of violent deaths associated with the three-day Christmas observance becomes known.

As it now stands the estimated total has again passed the 500 mark, with around 400 of these attributed to some form of traffic catastrophe.

It can only be a hardened attitude, resulting from similar slaughter in the past, that keeps people from being aghast at such a needless sacrifice of human lives over each of the several annual holiday periods.

While Mansfield and immediate vicinity escaped traffic fatalities during these three days there was a sufficient number of automobile accidents within the county to strongly stress the danger involved in driving on snow or ice and to strengthen determination to enforce careful driving practices on all motorists who habitually violate regulations intended to increase the safety of themselves and others.

Near-zero weather, with likelihood of slippery pavements, is the most dangerous time for driving automobiles and also the time of greatest need for keeping cars in good condition as to tires, brakes, lights and mechanical equipment in general.

The coming week-end, with three days for New Year observance, should be recognized in advance as another period of peril for motorists—with the added danger of drunken driving being even more prevalent than during the Christmas holidays

When the needless waste of lives, the long-drawn-out suffering of those not fatally injured, and the immense total damage to cars are all taken into account, it appears that the urge to more careful driving should impress every person privileged to assume such responsibility.

It might even seem that realization of danger might be sufficiently strong to induce some to choose a safer means of transportation on necessary trips during treacherous weather.

Communism Seen From Inside.

HOWEVER little concern may be felt by many people about communistic organization activities and propaganda in the United States, there is an advantage in knowing some of the things that are going on along this line, and the determined efforts that are being made by the Communist party in this country to capitalize on the discontent of unemployed persons and foment discord in the ranks of labor.

Possibly the story of subversive influences at work in this country is no more clearly or convincingly told than by mild-mannered Ed Herzog, of Elyria, member of the American Legion, who saw the workings of the Communist party from the inside and who yesterday told a Mansfield audience of some of the things he had observed.

The appearance of close hook-up of communism with the CIO branch of the organized labor movement, as related by Mr. Herzog, is to be deeply regretted by every friend of organized labor, for it is only on principles of progressive Americanism that the workers of this country can hope to maintain the eminence they have already attained above those of any other country in the world.

The appeal of Russian communism, or of any of the other alien isms, is only to those who, for one reason or another, have either temporarily suffered from the effects of the depression or who realize their own inability or unwillingness to compete with other workers.

At least one college recently established a "chair of democracy," intended to combat anti-American trends. It might be well for other colleges to take similar steps—and even for schools to make sure that the principles of Americanism are being taught to children from the earliest age of understanding.

Food for the Starving.

ALL AMERICANS are glad to know that 3,000,000 bushels of wheat are going to Spain, to be distributed among civilians by the Red Cross. This is surplus grain provided by the government. It is to be distributed regardless of party lines, but presumably most of it will go to the Loyalists, because they are virtually in a state of siege and have been near starvation for months.

It is hoped that large quantities of grain will likewise find their way to China. With our great store it can easily be spared, and reduction of the surplus will raise the price, improve farmers' buying power and help business.

Some other surplus stores might be handled in the same way, to the joint advantage of needy foreign friends and our own people.

A Pershing Movie.

GENERAL PERSHING, recovered from his serious illness of a year ago, is said to be finishing his autobiography as he rests and enjoys the sunshine on the edge of an Arizona desert. His World war memoirs were completed and published several years ago. The autobiography deals with other periods of his life and includes his military career before 1917.

It should be an interesting work if the writing is equal to the material, and a Hollywood producer is already negotiating for the moving picture rights. If he is successful, Pershing himself may do some of the work of preparing the book for screen presentation. Here is an unusual piece of work for the elderly soldier-hero.

It is interesting to note that Wilbur Glenn Voliva, of Zion City, Ill., in addition to thinking the world is flat, thinks New Deal policies are sound.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — In the background of the current trust-busting suit against the American Medical association and its Washington affiliate is a common human problem, long disregarded in the main.

It is the desire of Mr. Average John Jupes to be able to:

Have daughter Martha's eyes examined and fitted with glasses.

Find out for sure the meaning of that pain in his side.

Look for the next baby with love instead of dread.

—To have all this without fear of punishing doctor bills.

The medical profession in recent years has made progress toward this with group hospitalization and various semi-charitable clinics to which low income groups have access.

But average John Jupes came in between. He was not rich enough to laugh at doctor bills, not poor enough to feel comfortable about going to public clinics.

In Washington, leaders in the profession recognized this gap and recommended that their fellows work out a pooling or pre-payment system for middle and low income groups which would give them a more comfortable feeling about medical bills.

* * *

Doctors Struck Back.

MEDICAL leaders here were resentful on two fronts. They had been "scooped" by a non-professional group. And they could only blame the rank and file of their own profession for not supporting their own plan earlier. They began fighting back, against the Group Health association, and bestirring their laggard associates.

Group Health association, supported by an HOLC grant of $40,000, opened its own clinic early in 1937, hired its own physicians, began collecting monthly dues, and promised full medical and clinical services, including surgery, for subscribers. Its ranks of a few hundred swelled to thousands of federal employes, and outsiders looked on enviously.

The principal medical men of Washington, largely members of the American Medical association, pressed their own laggard members to work out a plan.

A. M. A. members in Washington, assisted by the national organization and its major executive, Dr. Morris Fishbein of Chicago, attacked the Group Health proposition as dangerous to the health of the country.

* * *

Twenty-One Indicted.

BUT it was the next step attributed to the medical fraternity here which became the basis for the grand jury indictments of 16 Washington physicians and five A. M. A. leaders in other cities, including Dr. Fishbein.

The indictment charged that A. M. A. physicians conspired to deny use of Washington hospitals to Group Health members or their patients.

Meanwhile there is evidence that average John Jupes will get at least part of his dream, even while the doctors battle. Shortly before the federal indictment was issued in Washington, the Washington A. M. A. branch got its own plan in order and announced it. Fees were roughly comparable to the $3 a month charged by Group Health.

This Washington A. M. A. plan, with modifications, likely will be pushed in other cities.

QUALIFYING FOR THE CABINET

Congressional Lineup Is Puzzling

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Political Washington is always at fever heat the last few days before a new congress convenes. The lawmakers virtually are all in the capital by that time but their alignment cannot accurately be determined until the session opens and they start voting on a few things. Party groups nominally classify understandably. However, there invariably are quite a number of semi-independents on both sides, creating an element of uncertainty as to actual parliamentary divisions on specific questions.

Bankhead

Time was when a party majority was a legislative majority. But this hasn't been true all the while (or much of the while) for three or four administrations back.

President Wilson could not control all his Democrats. Presidents Harding and Coolidge could not control all their Republicans. President Roosevelt has had a dickens of an experience with his Democrats, and now his control is more unreliable than ever. It is problematic whether the administration really has a congressional majority, except on paper.

Soon after Vice President Garner's and Speaker Bankhead's respective gavels land their initial cracks at noon January 3 we shall begin to have an inkling of the nature of the rival line-ups.

Thus for the scene has been one of mere scrabblings for advantage.

They are exciting. They have raised Washington's political temperature to something terrific. It is unprecedented, indeed, since war days, anyway. It may subside, though, when it becomes apparent or not whether the New Deal really was licked at the last election. If it WAS conclusively licked, that will settle the matter one way. If not, there will be a settlement the other way. If the issue remains in doubt for a bit, we are due for a hectic congressional period. Nevertheless, succeeding votes on Capitol Hill will be progressively clarifying.

"Bloc" Government.

Our talk is to the effect that Uncle Sam runs a two-party system.

European countries traditionally have had multiplicities of parties. This isn't the rule now in Germany, Italy and Russia, which have only one party each, meaning nothing—except despotism. Yet formerly Germany and Italy had whole pluralities of parties. France has yet. So has Britain, though not quite so many of them.

We have contended that our supposed two-party method was vastly better—two major parties, with an inconsiderably few Progressive, Farmer-Labor and otherwise independent mavericks unavoidably mixed in, but inconsequential.

The truth is that we have had, of late, as many "blocs" as any European country. There have been at least a couple of conflicting "blocs" of Republicans; two or three Democratic "blocs"; a "bloc" each of Progressives and Farmer-Laborites; plus some unassorted independents—six or seven "blocs" altogether.

These "blocs" split among themselves, coalesce and reassemble variously.

It is, from day to day, representative.

Roosevelt Versus Garner.

During the pre-congressional-sessional era of 1938-9 we have heard a deal of conferences between President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner.

From all official accounts Roosevelt and Garner have met most amicably. We all know that, in fact, the two are as far apart as the poles. Garner is as far from being a Roosevelt Democrat as Senator Burton K. Wheeler is from being an ex-Senator Daniel O. Hastings (of the Republican national committee) Republican.

They just don't mix.

Republicans are Democrats. Democrats are Republicans.

They disagree among themselves also.

"Blocs?" We have as many of them as any country ever had. They are a good thing, too, probably.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

National Affairs In 1938.

By ERIK M. ERIKSSON
Professor of History, University of Southern California.

As the end of the year approaches interest is naturally centered on the prospects of the coming year. Nevertheless it presents a favorable opportunity for a backward glance over the twelve month period which is about to pass into history. What have been the most important national economic developments during 1938? What governmental acts of the period affecting the country's economic life will be worthy of mention when the permanent history of the present era is written?

Heading the list is the Pope-McGill Farm Act, passed in January, which virtually reestablished federal control over agriculture on a compulsory basis in spite of the Supreme Court's 1936 decision that such control is not permitted by the Constitution.

Significantly, in spite of this far-reaching legislation, the year 1938 saw a definite decline in the status of the farmers who naturally blamed the New Deal for their condition. Their feelings were reflected in the elections of November and in the earlier primaries which revealed a marked loss of New Deal strength. Incidentally both the senators who sponsored the 1938 Farm Act were eliminated from the Senate.

Throughout the year the economic "recession" which started in 1937 and which produced a sharper decline in business witnessed in any similar period of history, received much attention from the government.

The New Dealers, unwilling to admit that their drastic program, designated to make America over according to their own pattern, had been chiefly responsible for the recession, sought with little success to convince the people that the decline was due to a "sit-down" strike by business in an attempt to injure the administration.

Ignoring this silly charge, Congress sought to give some aid to harassed business by modifying the punitive taxes on capital gains and corporation surpluses. This the New Dealers strenuously opposed and, when the bill was passed, the President took the occasion to deliver a radio address denouncing it though he did allow it to become a law without his signature.

To the New Dealers the desirable procedure was to renew the pump-priming program, so sums totalling about five billion dollars was appropriated for loans, work relief, public works and so forth, in spite of the fact that the billions spent for pump-priming from 1933 to 1937 had failed to produce anything more than an artificial prosperity and had failed to solve more than a fraction of the unemployment problem.

When the Labor Standards Act, commonly referred to as the wages and hours law, was put into effect in October, the New Dealers were entitled to celebrate a notable victory. Ever since the Supreme Court had invalidated the compulsory code system in 1935, they had sought to secure new legislation to reestablish control over business and industry.

Through the Wagner Labor Relations Act of 1935, the Guffy coal control acts of 1935 and 1937, the Robinson-Patman and Walsh-Healy acts of 1936 and finally through the 1938 wages and hours act, to mention the most important laws, this control has been set up. Today the federal government rules business and industry far more thoroughly than at any period in American history with the exception of the period from 1933 to 1935 when the N. R. A. code system was in operation.

In view of the fact that the Supreme Court seems to have accepted largely the New Deal philosophy of constitution interpretation, there is little prospect of court relief from this control.

The failure of the President's purge of anti-New Deal senators together with the notable success of the Republicans in the 1938 elections must be included among the most important developments of the year. In this result is to be found a basis for the hope that the trend of government toward the left will be halted.

Do You Dread New Year's Challenge?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

IT WON'T be long now! Here's January the First, just around the corner and, chances are, you'll be ushering it in with the best of them . . . drinking toasts, ringing bells, crying "Happy New Year" to the Other Fellow and smiling as he wishes the same to you.

But will you mean it? Do you really want a "Happy New Year"? Are you determined to make 1939 a joyous affair . . . willing to bury the sadness of the past and seize all the pleasure and opportunity tomorrow has to offer?

OR DO YOU SECRETLY DREAD THE NEW YEAR'S CHALLENGE? AND WILL YOU—CONSCIOUSLY OR UNCONSCIOUSLY—STRIVE TO KEEP ON DOING BUSINESS AT THE SAME OLD TOMB?

Perhaps you think that those are crazy questions . . . that no one dreads happiness, rejects opportunity, clings to grief. If so, guess again, stranger, for you're wrong. DODGING JOY IS THE BEST THING A LOT OF US DO! . . . There's just one task harder than BEARING SORROW for the average mortal, and that is—GIVING IT UP . . . It takes infinitely more courage to be GLAD than to be SAD. And there's a reason.

We're a curious mixture of laziness, cowardice and conceit, we humans. AND THE HAPPY MAN IS DEFINITELY ON THE SPOT. All the world brings him its troubles and hangs upon him its responsibilities. He must not only sympathize with the sorrowful but he is also expected to sign their note and lend them his best golf clubs. Or be dubbed a SO-'N'-SO by public proclamation.

On the other hand, the afflicted are sitting pretty. By common consent they are held exempt from ordinary pressures and penalties. Trouble has become the blanket alibi for every kind of cussedness . . . the perfect hide-away from criticism or responsibility. Can you bawl out the broken-hearted or tell the handicapped where to head in? Can you tell the homeless that they're a bunch of mooching meanies or inform the bereft mother that she's a selfish egotist who is parading her sorrow for profit and publicity? No you can't, dearie, and you'd better not start trying!

Time was when fine, proud people bore their grief with a gay and gallant front. But that's before we discovered that tears could become the slickest of all rackets. Today, you might's well try to rob a lioness of her young as to attempt to deprive these pain profiteers of their pangs.

Why does our luck so seldom improve with the passing of the years? That's why—we don't really want improvement, we'd lose our soft set-up if it came—we'd lose our cozy TOMBS.

Edna St. Vincent Millay, when she was only 19, wrote an amazing poem called "RENASCENCE." With Youth's scornful eyes, she saw the tragedy of Man's flight from life . . . saw how he buried his spirit long before his body was ready for the tomb. And so she wrote as if she, herself lay in her grave, safe and content, with the rain pattering above. But suddenly life calls! She is no longer content with a grave . . . no longer in love with the contemptible safety of a coward. Furiously she cries—

"Oh, God . . . give me new birth
"And put me back upon the earth!
"Upset each cloud's gigantic gourd
"And then let the heavy rain, down-poured
"In one big torrent, set me free,
"OH WASH MY GRAVE AWAY FROM ME."

New Year, just around the corner! New Year, with its challenge and risk—its fury and glory. Have the courage to take that challenge—run that risk! Rise and take, as your prayer for the New Year—

"WASH MY GRAVE AWAY FROM ME!"

(Copyright, 1938)

Timely Editorial

Fall of a Theory.

In an article in Science telling the destruction done by the September hurricane in the wood lots of southern New England Frank Thone tells of a theory that fell with the trees.

The practice of "growing evenly ranked masses of trees, all of the same species and all of the same age, which the world copied from 19th-cenutry Germany, will be abandoned in favor of more naturalistic forests of mixed species and all ages." In southern New England, where most of the wooded area is to be found in small parcels, natural forest growth, with mixed species and ages, showed a higher resistance to the hurricane than the cultivated timber stands.

Since almost half of southern New England trees are believed to have been brought down by the hurricane, it is obvious that the mortality in some wooded plots was far higher than one in every two trees. The farmer who accepts nature as partner in the wood lot is apparently the best sort of forester.—New York Sun.

Left Behind.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

DAYLIGHT came tardily this morning. An icy wind swirled snow about the corners of the house, and piled a wintry drift, in artistic design, along the full length of the porch. The sky was overcast and gray. The atmosphere was crisp and penetrating. I felt the bitter chill even through my thick, warm clothes.

As I went to the barn, I heard a familiar whir of wings so close it startled me, and then that peculiar, low, muffled scream a turtle dove will make when taking wing. I could hardly believe my ears, but I saw a solitary dove light on a branch of the nearby apple tree. There he perched, apparently discouraged and lonely. A cold blast of wind cruelly blew his feathers and pushed his body forward. The light falling snow flecked his slate drab back, and long wing feathers.

I saw no future for my feathered friend but suffering and starvation, now that grim winter was at hand. I thought I recognized the same unconscious feeling in the abject little figure perched so near above me.

I went to the house and brought a used, hard broom and swept the snow away, beneath the tree, then scattered buckwheat and placed ground meal in little heaps. I went inside the barn and watched.

He looked down, but did not move until some English sparrows fluttered down and greedily started eating. Then he dropped from his perch, eyed the piles of meal warily, and made one cautious peck. It tasted good, so he began to gulp as hurriedly as the sparrows. I saw him scratch about the newly swept earth and take some gravel, so necessary to digest his food and so scarce when snow is heavy on the ground.

When his meal was finished, he took a few bites of snow into his mouth, as though it tasted bad, and then flew across the snowy field to the woods. I hope I have made him welcome here, and when he is hungry, I will see him perch on that tree again.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Tay Garnett is a director who operates independently and he thinks his job is the most interesting one in pictures. For instance, when he isn't in Hollywood or visiting in New York he is usually to be found aboard some boat or exploring tropic islands.

That's how he found the Laccadives, and that's how Mrs. Garnett came to be mistaken for the Queen of England . . .

But perhaps I should explain that the Laccadives are a tiny group of atolls about 300 miles off the Malabar coast of India, and Tay was there to shoot background for a picture in which Frederic March plays the leading role.

When they got there they discovered no other white persons had been on the islands in 45 years. In possession of one of the chiefs was a faded photograph of Queen Mary. They didn't even know George V was dead, and probably they forgot 45 years makes an appreciable difference in a woman's appearance.

* * *

SO WHEN Garnett's party came ashore, and the natives found in Mrs. Garnett a youthful and lovely woman, they became wildly excited and shouted many weird but friendly messages. Nobody could interpret the jive until an ancient school teacher who spoke a few words of English explained that the natives thought Queen Mary was honoring them with a visit.

"That was an amazing and interesting place," Garnett recalled in his suite at the Waldorf. "The natives were Mohammedans and had what may be called a Biblical cast to their features. They originally were a shipwrecked band of pilgrims washed ashore about 400 years ago. We found them kindly and considerate. A pack of cigarets represented vast wealth, but money was valueless.

"They brought a baby to me that was ill, and it seemed to me the child was underfed. I gave it come canned milk diluted with water and in an hour the child was all right again. In their eyes I became a powerful medicine man and was besieged with requests to cure the people's ills. I did dress a severe cut on one of the men's hands, and the medicine acted so quickly everybody became convinced I had supernatural powers. Fortunately we got away before somebody asked me to restore a missing leg."

TAY is one of those convivial travelers who is always off on some involved mission. He shoots all this background at his own expense and sells it to Hollywood. Once he started for New York but wound up in Mexico City and decided to go on from there to see what the rest of the world was like and ended, finally, at Istanbul.

Budapest, he says, was gorgeous and seething with politics, but nothing ever happens there. . . . Paris was exciting. . . . He found Berlin gay but Vienna seemed dazed and sad. . . . In his opinion Hawaii is the garden spot of the world and the Royal Hawaiian the most beautiful hotel he ever saw. Havana was fun. He lost a few bob in the casinos at Venice.

His plans for the present? Just a couple of weeks in New York and back to the coast. He rather thinks his latest picture, "Trade Winds," will go. He hopes so. It was for this film that he went to the Laccadives and became a potent medicine man.

CHAPTER 33

WORTHINGTON GURLEY had never actually told Sara Sue that he loved her.

He had imagined it quite heartily — Sara Sue being extremely pretty—and it was pleasant imaginings for an impressionable lad among strangers. Infatuaton comes easily that way. And, too, he hadn't felt like just giving in to Bob Towne; competition breeds determination, without rational cause.

But 17 is awfully young, and after meeting the sweet little Marcia d'Alaine, Worthington moved around rather sheepishly for a while. Eventually, though, he went to Sara Sue.

"It certainly is funny, how everything in life works out all right," he told her. "Remember how you couldn't meet me for that swim a week ago, Sara Sue? Well, that was where I met Marcia, and say—she's grand!"

"She is, truly, Worthington."

"Yeah man! And I was mad at you for a while, for not keeping your date. Well, Fate does things like that, doesn't it?"

Sara Sue smiled. "You aren't mad at me any more? We can still be friends?"

"Oh, gosh, Sara Sue! I should say so! Why, you were the one who brought us together. I can never repay you for that!"

"I thought you laid it to Fate?" She couldn't resist that dig.

"Well, yes, but—well, you know what I mean. You couldn't keep the date and all. I guess I was pestering you anyway. I—I'm young enough to be your kid brother!"

She squeezed his arm then, and gave him a truly lovely smile. "I wish I did have a kid brother, Worthington. Like you. I hope we will always be friends. Close friends. Marcia and I are."

"Well, gosh, Sara Sue—you bet! You just call on me any time you want anything. Anything, ever. Gosh, you're swell, Sara Sue!" The young fellow felt it, and meant it. There is no loyalty in Christendom like that of a teen age for an ideal.

Sara Sue Davis, Incorporated, was made immensely happy by that little conference. Worthington had been a problem customer. She had solved his problem (somehow she felt it was a permanent solution) and enjoyed the process.

* * *

She was making $300 a month from her novel Counsel in Romance cottage, but beyond that was the immense satisfaction, not to be measured in figures at all, of unselfishly helping others to achieve happiness. "It seems sort of a copybook philosophy, but it works," she mused. "I feel so sorry for people who are cynical about such things."

Two days later she had to listen to a detailed girl-to-girl confession from dainty little Marcia herself. "Had to" perhaps is incorrect; "had the privilege of" is better, for it was a distinct privilege. It always is—to have a happy friend pour out heart secrets. Little Marcia was glowing.

Sara Sue thought she was done with her youngsters, then, except for casual jollity with the gang in her living room. But in that surmise she was wrong.

Ten days after the broken swimming date, Sara Sue was awakened at 11 p. m. by someone gently calling. She awoke with a slight start, but was not frightened because the voice was outside her bedroom window, and she recognized it anyway. It came in a stage whisper—"Sara Sue! Oh, Sara Sue!"

"What is it?" she answered, face to the screen.

"It's me. Worthington. And Marcia. Let us in!"

"Whatever's the matter? It's awfully late."

"It's not midnight. And it's urgent. Emergency."

She slipped into negligee and went to her door, expecting some sort of joke. They came in, both blushing, smiling.

"Listen, Sara Sue," he resumed, "will you let us borrow your wedding ring?"

They might have asked for her kitchen stove, or her tooth brush, or her lawn mower, and still not have surprised her as much. Her wedding ring! She only stared at them, dopey.

"Oh, please, Sara Sue! It's late. Nothing's open now downtown. And we—we're going to get married! Tonight! We just have to have a ring. It wouldn't be like marrying at all, without a ring, Marcia says, and she's right. Will you?"

She plopped down onto a divan, looking at the kids. Not knowing whether to burst into laughter or tears, and somehow wanting to do both.

"Sit down," she finally managed, and they obeyed her.

"And Sara Sue," Marcia went on with the talk, enthusiastically, "We'd just give anything in the world if you'd come with us and be a—a witness. And my bridesmaid. I mean matron. Or whatever it is. Please, will you? You've been so good! I know it's late, but—"

She sighed at them heavily, controlling her emotions.

"Where are you going? You have to have a license. And are you sure?"

"Oh, Worthington has the duckiest idea!" Marcia leaned forward in her eagerness. "We can take a boat at Galveston, with a captain. Worthington knows about it. They can take us outside the Texas line, into the ocean. A captain can marry people, and won't it be romantic! On the gulf. There's a moon and everything! Sara Sue, you simply MUST come!"

* * *

Simply must!

Sara Sue knew, then, that she'd give anything to do it. She couldn't imagine an elopement more romantic, from start to finish. She had eloped with her Larry, five yeas ago, and never regretted it. She believed in young love, in young love's wisdom. She was still young herself. She thought Worthington and Marcia were so fine, so clean and good and American.

"I'm so happy for you," she declared at last, suddenly sobbing. "C-congratulations. It's wonderful —w-wonderful—"

She had to stop and cry a moment. Marcia, too, shed tears—crying with her sheer emotional stress, happy emotion — while Worthington looked on in dire confusion.

The cry didn't last too long, however.

Sara Sue knew that a responsibility had parked itself in her lap. For the first time in her life, in this moment, she felt the "maturity" of her 23 years. Here was genuine romance—almost her own romance being re-enacted before her very eyes. And it was awful to have to do what she knew she must.

She gathered her wits and talked to the youngsters.

* * *

Surely, if they insisted, she would lend them her ring. It had never once been off her finger until a year after Larry's death; then to force herself back to normalcy she had stored it away. What better use in all the world for it, than that some other young people should use it for a love-life seal?

Surely, too, she would go with them, stand up with them. Hold Marcia's hand and give the bride away. Do anything under the sun — or under the moon—to help them! It would be an extraordinary pleasure. Romance!

But—Worthington, and Marcia —listen.

Sara Sue talked then. She told them all the "catches" 'to their happy plan. She talked long and earnestly. She reminded them that they were just freshmen; that Worthington's parents might cut off his money; that they were awfully young, and perhaps just impulsive. "Couldn't you just kiss her a few times tonight, and wait until June at least?" she pleaded.

"I have already done that, Sara Sue! Gosh!" He squeezed his sweetheart, then, loved her openly, unashamed.

"I know," said Sara Sue, not smiling. "I understand. Oh, I do!"

But she talked on.

This world is no easy place to earn a living now. They both had to think of that. And what of possible babies? And what about obligation to your mothers? And you won't have the college education you so wanted. Aren't you studying to be a great physician, Worthington taking a pre-med course at Rice? What of your future? You might never amount to much without your college degrees.

"I would love him forever," little Marcia vowed, half-whispering, "even if he were a street cleaner always, making $10 a week!"

* * *

Sara Sue looked into the boy's eyes, long and carefully. She saw the Grand Something in them Deep. Soulful. She saw the set of his chin. A strong lad. And strong-hearted. She looked at Marcie. head up. so lovely and young; and so sure. The older girl took a deep breath then, sighing. She understood.

"Do you," she asked after a bit. quietly, "still want to go? Now? To be married?"

Both nodded emphatically.

"Yes," whispered Marcia. "Yes!"

"Then come on!" Sara Sue Davis ordered, standing up. "It'll take me just five minutes to get on street clothes. "I'll go with you, and we won't stop for anything in the world!"

FACES CHARGE

Youth Accused of Molesting Woman Gets Hearing Jan. 3.

George Cushing, 23, of R. D. 3, Mansfield, is scheduled to appear before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court Jan. 3 on a charge of molesting a West Fourth street woman at her home last week.

Represented by counsel when arraigned in court last Saturday, Cushing asked for continuance. Judge Kalbfleisch set the hearing for 9:30 a. m. next Tuesday. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Police said they arrested Cushing at a West Fourth street address at 11 p. m. last Friday. Officers reported the woman had permitted him to come into the house in order to effect his apprehension after he had telephoned on numerous occasions asking to see her. She told officers that her husband worked nights and that she did not know Cushing, who had made a delivery of coal to her home when working for a coal company several months ago.

Municipal court records show that Cushing, a married man, paid a $50 fine last July when he pleaded guilty to a charge of indecent exposure.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

CLUB LEADERS WILL CONTINUE ACTIVITIES

Mansfield Federation to Begin New Year Functions With Tea Next Week; Special Programs to Occupy January Dates.

AS 1938 CREEPS quietly to its final day, hurried club women and busy social leaders look back with a sense of satisfaction as they regard the accomplishments of the past three months, and look ahead with anticipation as they prepare to plunge into a winter and early spring filled with pleasant and profitable activities.

The Mansfield Federation of Women is starting the new year with a meeting and tea at the Women's Club, Jan. 6. At this time Helen Bacon, well-known dramatic reader and director of the Community Players, will read a play.

Just glancing ahead from New Year day we see plenty of interesting promises of entertainment to come. Next Tuesday the Tourist club will have a sealed program and luncheon at the Women's Club for members and guests. Mrs. Fred Berg and Mrs. Dimon Herring are hostesses for the affair.

Musicale-Tea.

On the second Sunday in January members of the Music Study club will entertain at the Mansfield-Leland hotel with the annual guest musicale and tea. Members of the Ashland Music club will give the program, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Frank and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Watts will serve as hosts.

Pursuit of previously scheduled programs will occupy most of Mansfield's major clubs from the first of the year until mid-February at which time a number of special functions are planned. Members of the American Association of University Women will have a busy month with their semi-formal guest dance being planned for Feb. 4 at the hotel. Mrs. F. J. Heringhaus is in charge. Then on Feb. 14 they will have a buffet party at the same place with Mrs. W. L. Miller in charge.

Joint Sessions.

Three of the major study clubs will meet jointly on Feb. 20 for a luncheon, and to hear Dr. J. L. King, Denison university, speak. The clubs are Travelers, Round Table and Victorian and hostesses are Mrs. Fred L. Wolf, Mrs. E. R. Hartman and Mrs. Edwin Mansfield.

On the tenth, Mrs. J. E. Lautsbaugh, Mrs. F. F. Forshee and Mrs. Paul McConnell will be the hostesses for the Cosmopolitan club guest tea at the Women's Club. Other groups planning special February events are the Conversational club, the Sorosis and the Tuesday Book club.

Many other organizations are planning special functions for after the holidays. Mansfield sororities, smaller social units, church organizations, and welfare groups all look to early January for launching activities for the next six months.

* * *

CHANGE HOSTESSES.

Members of the Art Study club will meet Friday with Mrs. Theodore Frank, Sycamore street, instead of with Mrs. Boyd Wierman as originally planned.
